

CAMO

Continuing Airworthiness Reviews

Global Services

Continuing Airworthiness Reviews

When you entrust our Boeing Leasing Services CAMO support team to help you manage your aircraft lease transitions, you can expect a thorough and quality-focused airworthiness review.

Our Boeing team manages the airworthiness of the aircraft, including monitoring these details:

- Airframe and engine flying hours and associated flight cycles have been properly recorded
- Flight manual is applicable to the aircraft configuration and has the latest revision status available
- All maintenance due on the aircraft has been performed according to the approved maintenance program and released in accordance with Annex I (Part M);
- All known defects have been corrected, or are proactively managed in a controlled manner
- All applicable Airworthiness Directives (ADs) have been applied and properly registered
- All modifications and repairs on the aircraft have been registered and are in compliance with Annex 1 (Part-21) to regulation (EU) number 748/2012
- All service life-limited components on the aircraft are properly identified, registered and have not exceeded their approved service life limit
- The current mass and balance statement is valid and reflects the configuration of the aircraft
- Aircraft complies with the latest revision of its type design as approved by the registry authority for the aircraft
- If required, aircraft holds a noise certificate for the current configuration of the aircraft

Throughout the process, we ensure that all technical records and documents are reviewed in accordance with EASA Annex 1 (Part M) regulatory requirements.

Once the initial review is complete, the Boeing team will continue to manage and monitor and ensure the continuing airworthiness of the aircraft. By relying on Boeing, you can be assured that all aircraft records are properly maintained and the aircraft will maintain its continuing airworthiness status until you are ready to transition the aircraft to a new buyer or lessee.

For more information regarding Airworthiness Records Reviews and other comprehensive CAMO services, please contact:
Our Boeing Team

The Boeing Company
Boeing Global Services
5905 Legacy Drive, Suite 325
Plano, TX 75024